Clark Rampling Died 1909 Aged 74 This makes him about 70 when teaching at Whatarangi

7th March 1877 One Clark Rampling, who styled himself an Architect and Builder, was fined 10s and costs, with 24 hours alternative, at the R.M. Court on Monday, for being in a condition in which an architect certainly should not be. The fine was not paid, and Rampling Clark was removed into durance vile. Clark Rampling was a leading architect in England dying in 1874, Presumably this Clark Rampling was related and possibly the teacher's father

15th March 1889 To Awaite (aided school). Mr Rampling. On roll, 13 present, 12, Although the teacher here has had no experience of public school work, he is not above learning, and has profited so much by the suggestions made to him that he contrived to pass all his standard scholars this year

Te Awaite was in Tory Channel, Marlborough Sounds, which would have been very isolated in 1884. The school was based around the whaling station.

4th March 1909 A telegram received yesterday by Inspector Ellison states that an old age pensioner, named Clarke Rampling died suddenly at Manakau yesterday morning. The coroner does not consider an inquest necessary.
